Dear David,

Thank you for taking time to make a presentation on "Library Resources for ECU Faculty" for our Introduction to College Teaching summer series on Wednesday, July 29, 2015.

Several of our participants have taught in a clinical situation in the past but are moving to academic courses, and were very impressed to learn of so many resources they were not aware of. They were encouraged to know that those resources can help them incorporate more varied content in their courses to appeal to today's students.

We look forward to working with you again in the future.

Sincerely,

Joyce Joines Newman, Instructional Consultant

RE: Presentation for the Graduate School/Joyner Library/University Writing Center Research Series

Dear David:

Thank you so much for working with me to bring the Graduate Research Series to life again this year for the graduate students at ECU! I think the workshops were well attended and the students really appreciated them! It has been wonderful getting to know you and I look forward to working with you more as we try to reach out to graduate students in new and different ways. ECU is lucky to have you as an advocate for its students!

Thank you again for your willingness to provide this time for graduate student professional development and for sharing your excellence with these eager future colleagues!

My best wishes for a great rest of the semester!

Sincerely,

Kathleen T Cox, PhD, CCC-SLP

Dear David:

The 2017 Teaching with Technology Summer Academy concluded last week with faculty praising the opportunity to learn and to begin implementing or enhancing their implementation of Universal Design for Learning, course redesign principles, new technologies, and additional strategies for using technologies they already have in place. Fellows, mentors, presenters, and other participants also discussed policies and procedures and resources available and raised important questions for discussion. Once again the academy served as an incubator for ideas and growth in faculty competence that will impact the teaching and learning of students.

Thank you for your important role in making the TWT a success. Eight faculty completed all 30 hours of the academy and will continue to develop their projects during the coming year. A total of 58 faculty and staff attended one or more session(s) of the program. Some faculty attended individual sessions to either meet their DE Faculty Development Activity requirement or to meet their individual faculty development interests/needs. We hope to continue their participation in the fall with OFE and College STAR faculty learning groups (FIGs and Faculty Learning Communities).

Thank you and your colleagues for providing the excellent session; "Library Resources." We are grateful for your participation in the 2017 TWT and hope you will be willing to participate next year.

Best regards,

Dorothy H. Muller, Director, OFE

Dear David:

Thank you very much for providing important information to faculty in your session, "Library Resources" at this year's Ninth Annual Teaching with Technology Summer Academy and then remaining to mentor fellows in the mentoring time that followed. The fellows were very interested and involved. Participants at faculty development sessions really enjoy the opportunity to get together with other campus faculty to learn and exchange information and teaching ideas. The TWT Summer Academy offers a perfect vehicle as the presenters engage them and encourage questions and comments. Presenters and mentors often say they also learn while sharing their knowledge and expertise with others. I hope you will continue to partner with OFE to provide programs for faculty.

You were an important part of a great week. The five days of the academy were full of great presentations and discussions of technologies, strategies, and applications to enhance instruction and support student learning. Fifteen faculty completed the week-long program earning the designation of TWT fellows. Other faculty attended one or more individual sessions of particular interest to them. Altogether 61 faculty and staff spent quality time learning and sharing ways to enhance teaching and learning in online, face-to-face, and/or hybrid courses. An added benefit to ECU faculty is that many of the programs were recorded so that faculty can view them as their schedules allow.

We are delighted to be able to serve the campus and look forward to continued opportunities for faculty development with partners like you. Thank you again for providing faculty development in partnership with the OFE.

Sincerely,

Dorothy H. Muller

Dear Mr. Hisle,

I am writing to invite you to the Joyner Library/Academic Affairs Faculty Book Awards reception celebrating the accomplishments of faculty who have contributed to the prestige of East Carolina University through the creation and dissemination of scholarly books between July 1, 2017 and June 30, 2018. You are being honored for publishing:

Information Literacy Concepts

Provost and Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Ron Mitchelson will present awards to faculty at the reception on Wednesday, November 7th, 2018, in the Janice Hardison Faulkner Gallery on the second floor of Joyner Library. The event begins at 5:00pm. I hope you can join us to enjoy a wine and cheese reception, receive your award, and celebrate your accomplishment.

Please feel free to invite family members, colleagues and others with whom you want to share this recognition.

RSVP with the number in your party by Thursday, November 1st, 2018, via email to Adminstud@ecu.edu. Congratulations!

Sincerely,

Janice S. Lewis
Director, Academic Library Services

Dear David,

4/18/18

Thank you for serving as a judge for RCAW 2018. Without your engagement + expertise, RCAW would not be the high quality event that we expect to have at ECU.

Warm regards,

Mary
